Officials Pleased With Results

MONROE COUNTY public participation in yesterday's morning's Civil Defense test alert has been classified by officials as "excellent."

C. Marshall Reese, County CD Director, in a statement to newsmen following the public drill, regarded the excellent rating as responsible to a better informed public.

"The public seemed much better informed this time," he said. "It was evident the public has been educated to the point they understand their co-operation is essential."

The Man Only Wanted Information

IT HAPPENED yesterday on Stroudsburg's Main St. during the CD alert.

The whistles blew. The streets cleared. Not a soul was in sight.

Except one. A man. He walked out of tavern, proceeded (feeling no pain) down the street.

A policeman saw him, yelled: "Hey, you. Get off the street."

The man stopped, peered intently in the cop's direction, looked around with a curious gaze.

The policeman repeated the command.

"Awright, Awright. But where'd everybody go?"

Two Breaks Made At Tannersville

STATE POLICE at Stroudsburg Barracks yesterday were investigating breaks at London's Restaurant and Supply and Swisher Distributing Co. of Tannersville.

Trooper Edward Benesky, who investigated, said the break into London's netted the thief or thieves about $10 in currency. Entry, he said, was gained by breaking a panel of a rear door.

Fruitless

The loot was extracted from a petty cash box located in a desk drawer, the investigator said.

The other break apparently was fruitless, he continued. Entry was either made or attempted by breaking windows in the establishment. Both breaks occurred between 5 p. m., Monday, and 8 a. m., yesterday.

Half-Million 'Die' In Mock Attack

Dilworth Asks Change In Road Plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Southeastern Pennsylvania officials, industrialists, bankers and businessmen attacked the proposed Keystone Shortway yesterday as inviting "economic disaster" on metropolitan Philadelphia and the waterfront area stretching between South Jersey and Delaware.

Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia said the 280-mile 45-million-dollar, six-lane free road from Sharon to Stroudsburg "will just murder" Pennsylvania's largest city.

Though he admitted he favored construction of "some kind of Keystone Shortway"—as did approximately 150 men who attended the meeting of the Greater Philadelphia Movement—Dilworth said it should avoid siphoning off truck traffic from the midwest into New York.

But when the shortway is completed, possible in 1965, the route to New York and its vast port facilities will be 30 miles closer than Philadelphia and without a $25 toll fee, Dilworth pointed out.

He suggested a highway starting at Erie, crossing Williamsport and ultimately ending at Philadelphia.

Resolution

The leaders adopted a resolution which asked that all planning, engineering and construction work on the shortway—set to begin this year—should be halted until proper economic surveys can be made.

Dilworth noted that the population along the shortway route is "sparse" and that it is one of Gov. Leader's objectives to "develop the middle of the state."

"But the way it is being planned, the middle of the state will be developed with traffic going directly into New York, while Philadelphia's economy will be killed," he said.

One of the businessmen suggested the shortway route should be bent—upward to the north to originate in the west at Oil City and Erie, and downward through Bethlehem and then into Philadelphia.

Shortway Battlefront Drawn

THE KEYSTONE Shortway battlefront was marked yesterday by these developments:

(1) Gov. George M. Leader, staunch supporter of the Stroudsburg—Sharon superfreeway since taking office, answered Philadelphia opposition to the Shortway by declaring he will support legislation to make the nation's turnpikes toll-free if he is elected

U.S. senator.

(2) Arthur T. McGonigle, Republican candidate for governor, expanded on his previous endorsement of the Shortway and said that if he is elected, he will work to see that it is completed by 1965.

(3) The Keystone Automobile Club not to be confused with the Pennsylvania Motor Federation—AAA) announced in Philadelphia it favors a delay in the Shortway project until more highways are built elsewhere.

(4) Civil leaders in Allentown adopted a neutral attitude toward the superhighway, maintaining that it would not have an important effect on that city.

Gov. Leader, together with Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence, pointed out that the Shortway will bring motor traffic from the Midwest 38 miles closer to the Port of Philadelphia than to the Port of New York.

The Governor said the freeway is a "firm" project, despite Philadelphia objections, and expects work on two sections on opposite ends of the proposed road to get under way by the end of the year.

McGonigle, in a campaign speech, said Philadelphia businessmen misunderstand the purpose of the Shortway. It will not be built "to hurt anyone else or any area. If it is to help, it should be built," he declared.

State Office Serves Total Of 367,000

IN FEBRUARY, 1951, Stroudsburg was selected as the headquarters of a newly created administrative District within the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor and Industry, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Frank P. Maguire, prominent resident of East Stroudsburg who had been serving as the District Manager of the Bureau in the Lehigh Valley Area was designated as the District Manager of the new district.

Temporary headquarters were established in the local Pennsylvania State Employment Service office, 79 S. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg. In February 1952 the District Office moved to 22 S. Sixth St., Stroudsburg, and was located there until the present new quarters were obtained.

The Stroudsburg District Office services all of Pike, Monroe, lower Luzerne, Carbon, and Schuylkill Counties through seven local offices located in Stroudsburg, Jim Thorpe, Hazleton, Tamaqua, Mahanoy City, Shenandoah and Pottsville.

The population of the area serviced is approximately 367,000 (1950 Census).

A substantial portion of the Stroudsburg District is composed of counties in the lower anthracite region where mass unemployment brought about by mine closings, has created a grave economic situation. Administrative problems there have been complicated and intricate.

Working Areas

Spacious working areas for the District Office Staff of six have been provided in the new office at 408 Main Street.

Commenting on the new office location, Dr. Frank P. Maguire, District Manager said, "We look forward to providing an even greater measure of public service to the area which this District Office serves."

Our District 10 headquarters office is now well staffed and adequately equipped with modern facilities which will enable us to function more efficiently in the interest of serving the public who may find it necessary to avail themselves of the services which our Bureau offers."

Dr. Maguire as District Manager is responsible for the overall administration of activities within the district. He is assisted by Joseph E. Fay, assistant district manager of Kingsport, who is in charge of employment service activities and Carl J. Denz, assistant district manager of Stroudsburg who is in charge of unemployment compensation activities.

Air Alert Successful In Boroughs

BUSTLING pedestrians, casually moving window shoppers, and drivers and passengers of motor vehicle traffic suddenly deserted the streets and sidewalks late yesterday morning.

Preceding the ghost town effect on the Stroudsburgs had been two signals of the local sirens. The first wail—informing the public the Civil Defense alert was soon upon—sounded at 9:28 a.m.

About an hour later, at 10:30 a.m., the three-minute, pulsating siren alarm pressed the public into "take cover" action. Those on foot scurried toward shelter. Motorists abandoned their vehicles.

Persons fortunate enough to be inside their homes or other buildings remained inside. In many retail establishments business went on without interruption.

For the next ten minutes only centrally located Civil Defense auxiliary police and volunteers were present in the empty thoroughfares. Many of them took shelter when they had finished their duties. In a few cases, people took shelter under the entrances of stores and shops. They chatted to some extent, but the presence of an overall siren in the two boroughs was noted by almost all.

Before the second signal had been sounded, an occasional shopper or pedestrian could be heard remarking about the test and wondering if they'd make their destination before a "take cover" was engaged.

In Stroudsburg, most of the traffic found parking spots along the streets they were proceeding when the alarm was heralded from the sirens. Few cars or trucks were seen in the main or side streets.

Promptly at 10:40 a.m., the long, steady wail of the warning and emergency devices was heard. The streets were re-occupied almost as fast—if not faster—than they were emptied.

From a Civil Defense official view, the test was pegged "excellent." Most of the public participants will presumably agree.

Leader Frees Shortway From Politics

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Leader said today development of the 290-mile Keystone Shortway from Sharon to Stroudsburg should be kept out of politics.

"We can't build roads on a political basis any more," he said. "It's a luxury we can't afford. I rather resent people treating the shortway as a political football."

He said the federal interstate highway system, including the shortway, is laying the groundwork for Pennsylvania's economic development for the next century. He compared it with the economic frontiers opened by canals early in the 19th Century.

"My opinion is that the interstate highway system is going to determine the economic outlook—commercial and industrially—for this state for 100 years to come," he said.

Hazleton

Leader made the statement to a Hazleton delegation who asked for a top priority for a 12-mile section of the shortway between U. S. 309 north of Hazleton and the Pocono Interchange of the Northeastern Turnpike Extension.

The governor, with Highways Secretary Lewis M. Stevens at his side, expressed interest in the priority request and agreed more must be done to generate traffic on the Northeastern Extension from Scranton to Philadelphia.

Stevens said the Hazleton request seemed "logical" to him and that it would be turned over to his research and planning section for a decision by the end of the month.

The governor, however, made it plain that he favored early construction of the shortway.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower last night called for speedy approval of his defense reorganization, foreign aid and world trade programs to meet the Communist threat "in a situation of balanced terror in the world."

In a speech prepared for a dinner honoring Republican members of Congress, Eisenhower appealed for action on those programs without regard to party labels.

But he also told his GOP audience that the party's prospects for capturing control of Congress from the Democrats in the November elections are bright.

"If we will but try—if we will never forget the value of good hard work, we are certain, with our record, to win next November," Eisenhower said in an address also carried coast-to-coast on television and radio.

"Sure Road"

"This," said the President, "is the sure road to a Republican 86th Congress."

And Eisenhower pledged "you will find my standing beside you doing my very best for every member of our grand old party who carries forward the never ending fight for peace, for security, for sound, sane and progressive government in America."

Eisenhower reserved his political remarks for the conclusion of his talk, billed by the GOP National Committee as the formal kick-off of the party's drive to take over control of both the Senate and the House from the Democrats.

For the most part, the President spoke on the tense world situation and appealed for action on programs.

County Plays Major Role In State

By Don Carlson

THEORETICALLY, more than half a million persons in Pennsylvania were killed by nuclear bomb blasts and fallout from enemy air strikes yesterday.

The simulated disaster was met headon by Civil Defense personnel throughout the state — locally by the Monroe County CD Headquarters and its subdivisions.

Labeled by federal CD officials as "Operation Alert 1958," it was a daylong program designed to provide the organization's personnel with further experience in the solution of problems likely to be faced under attack conditions.

The daylight make-believe air strikes occurred over this state's cities of nearby Pittston, Johnstown, Erie, Hummelstown, York, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Faced with a problem of determining the number of theoretical casualties, information received at the local county headquarters reported the following estimated statewide tolls:

Persons killed, 502,500; injured, 112,822, and homeless, 12,398.

Vital Importance

Of vital importance to this county's CD staff was the make-believe fact that winds were carrying heavily contaminated fallout across the county. One fallout plotter described the theoretical situation as extremely serious.

The northernmost portion of the county could have been plagued with fallout contamination capable of causing death in some areas, the plotter theorized.

At 1718 hour—5:18 p. m.—a serious crown forest fire report was received at the local command. The spreading crown forest fire report blazes were located in Porter, Barrett, Dreher, Price and Paradise Townships.

Being dispatched were 175 fully equipped men, 12 wardens, one inspector, six mobile radio units; base stations and towers were being fully utilized.

Other equipment pressed into the theoretical forest fire battle included: Tank trucks with pumps and hose, bulldozers, dump trucks, four-wheel drive equipment, with clearing apparatus, portable lighting and aircraft for observation and direction.

District Game Protector John Doebbing also was notified and reported an additional 35 fully equipped men were dispatched.

Another Example

In another example of local participation in the fifth annual alert requests were received from eastern communities via CD centers—seeking some of the following assistance:

Monroe CD was asked to move 10,200-bed emergency hospitals from storage at the Tobyhanna Signal Depot to the Bucks County Courthouse; two such hospitals were also needed in Kirby Park in Kingston; one was needed at each of the following—Lower Wakefield, Newtown and Doylestown.

A request was also received seeking a summary of hospital facilities, doctors and medical supplies available in this county.

Assisting the local officials and staff with theoretical situations and requests were two representatives from the Tobyhanna Signal Depot: Deputy Commander Col. E. E. Moran and Military Liaison Officer Capt. D. L. Cole.

One of the surprise actions taken was an unannounced activation of a Masscare Center in directed the Masscare Center at the VFW post activated. Within 15 minutes some 18 persons had pressed the unit into action.

A rural resident was at the station some 10 minutes later.

The center was in full operation quickly with a bomb shelter available in the cellar of the structure, receiving station for injured and others on the ground floor, and housing facilities and processing space on a second floor.

Twenty-six evacuees were rushed to the center where they were attended for such theoretical injuries as skull fractures, broken limbs, and shock.

Two persons were transported to the station by means of a station wagon. On hand was a Civil Defense rescue truck.

In sequence, according to Mrs. George Albertson who was in charge of the center, the victims were treated for their injuries after processed, issued clothing, fed and registered and questioned about other possible survivors from the area they were found.

East Borough Plans For 'Tobyhanna Days'

Parking To Be Free At Meters

By Don Allen

SHOPPERS in East Stroudsburg will park free all over the borough on Friday as part of the Tobyhanna Days observance.

Borough Council last night approved a request from the East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. for elimination of parking meter receipts for the day as a stimulus to business.

Council also accepted an invitation to participate in a ribbon cutting ceremony tomorrow morning which will release a balloon in connection with the observance.

A stiffer policy toward property owners who fail to clean up their lots was approved by the group.

Lengthy Discussion

After a lengthy discussion of several properties, described as eyesores, Council voted to issue formal notices to the owners involved to clean them up.

In Other Action, Council:

Referred to the fire committee a petition from residents of Meyers and Harris Sts., for a fire alarm box on Meyers St. and authorized the committee to survey fire box requirements and provide for installations within the limits of the budget appropriation.

Approved installation of five street lights by Metropolitan Edison Co. on Normal and Taylor Sts. near the federal housing development.

Accepted a bid of $2.70 a ton delivered or $2 a ton at the quarry from the Hamilton Stone Co., Rossardsville, for stone for street department use and awarded to Interstate Asphalt Co., Quakertown, the contract for 10,000 gallons of bituminous material at 13.1 cents a gallon.

Voted to make Normal St. a through street from Prospect to Smith St. and from Smith St. to the federal housing project.

Approved annexation of 1.2 acres of land near the housing authority to be used for storm water drainage.

Authorized purchase of a block kit assembly for a street department truck at a cost of $650.

Approved recommendations of Engineer Edward C. Hess for removal of two parking meters on Crystal St. to provide an exit from the Monroe County National Bank drive-in window.

Granted Elmer Christine a permit to cut a driveway on Henry St.

Approved the appointment of Lewis Hastie as playground director; Judith Miller, cashier; Linda Nittel and Mary E. Gilliland, basket room attendants; Beverly Long and Delbert Davis, playground supervisors; Lewis Morgan, Jane Slutter, Janet Stewart and Joseph Chase, swimming and water safety instructors; and Joseph Smith as groundskeeper. All had been recommended by the Recreation Board.

Authorized Hess and Borough Manager Sterling Cramer to proceed with necessary work to eliminate as much as possible water conditions on Prospect and Elk Sts.

Hired Richard Notz as a patrolman in the police department upon certification by the Police Civil Service Commission. He is to assume his duties "as soon as possible."

With all of it, she found time to manage her home and pay attention to the multiple details of home life. And she looked forward with an eagerness which never grew old or tired and could not weaken to the coming of each new Spring to the garden at the rear of the house.

Yesterday in the dark room of the house on Seventh St., the busy hands of Ora Fleming Levering were still in the final coming of Spring.

Surviving are a daughter, Sara-Anne (Mrs. S. Kirby Ayers) of New York City and a brother, Dr. Bruce L. Fleming.

Friday at 2 p.m.—two weeks to the hour from the time of services for Dr. Bill—funeral rites will be held for Ora Levering at Dunkelberger and Westbrook Funeral Home, Rev. Roger W. Mason will officiate.

The will be held Thursday afternoon 7 p.m. at the funeral home. Cremation will take place at Maple Hill Crematory in Wilkes-Barre.

When Ann Logan Society began selling dishcloths as one method of raising funds, it was Ora who took the cloths home with her, sorted them in neat piles and left them stacked and ready for distribution to others throughout the County.

During World War One, Ora Levering "took to the road" to sell Liberty Bonds. From one end of the County she made public speeches and there was no village from the West End through the Mountains to Bushkill that, at one time or another, did not hear the sound of her voice.

Flu Epidemic

When the flu epidemic hit Monroe County in 1918, Ora found a project for herself without too much trouble. In the home on Main St. (where the Leverings then lived) she made huge, bubbling pots of soup.

And when the soup was cooked, Ora said that it was loaded into the back of a horse-drawn wagon. Then she went from house to house wherever there were sick or needy families and ladled steaming soup into the

Community Chest Sets Drive Goal Of $84,439

MONROE COUNTY Community Chest set up agency fund allocations totaling $84,439 for 1958-59 last night.

At a dinner meeting in Wyckoff's Tea Room, Chest directors heard reports from their budget and social planning committee chairmen.

With Holt Wyckoff presiding, the directors then voted for the following recommended allocations:

Boy Scouts — $7,000 or $200 more than for the current year. Investigation by the committees had shown it planned little increase in service and the agency request had been based on "potential" rather than program.

Child Health Committee — $1,077 or $77 more than current. Added money is for agency increase in dental examinations and work for school children.

Children's Aid Society — $11,000, the same as the present year.

Crippled Children — $750, same as the current year.

General Hospital — $12,500 or $2,000 more than the present allocation. Committees noted that increased costs for ward service and an increased charity load justified the increase. The Hospital has made no requests for new funds for several years.

Girl Scouts — $5,640. This year the Girl Scouts' allocation was $3,335. The agency plans to hire an executive secretary for training program for local leaders. It has increased its program, also.

Guidance Center — $3,000, the same as the present year.

Pennsylvania Citizens Assn. — $100, same as this year.

U.S.O. — $500 based on $1 for each of an estimated 500 Monroe County soldiers now in service.

Salvation Army — $12,000 or $500 more than the current year. Increases in need were same as reason for the increase in allocation.

Visiting Nurse Assn. — $6,000 or $100 less than the current year. The agency had requested only $6,000.

YMCA — $13,500, the same as this year.

Administrative and Campaign — $10,373, up $1,265. Additional money is to be used to pay a full-time clerk.

Contingent Fund — $1,000, same as the current year.

Budget committee chairman is S. Clair Smith. Social Planning committee chairman is Mrs. Elton Dening.

Campaign chairman for the coming year is H. G. Sanborn Jr. In comments to the directors last night, Sanborn said: "I have sat in on a number of the committee meetings. All I can say is that the agency budgets have been pared down and have been gone over again and again. This is the amount of money we need and we must raise it."

Approved the appointment of Lewis Hastie as playground director; Judith Miller, cashier; Linda Nittel and Mary E. Gilliland, basket room attendants; Beverly Long and Delbert Davis, playground supervisors; Lewis Morgan, Jane Slutter, Janet Stewart and Joseph Chase, swimming and water safety instructors; and Joseph Smith as groundskeeper. All had been recommended by the Recreation Board.

Authorized Hess and Borough Manager Sterling Cramer to proceed with necessary work to eliminate as much as possible water conditions on Prospect and Elk Sts.

Hired Richard Notz as a patrolman in the police department upon certification by the Police Civil Service Commission. He is to assume his duties "as soon as possible."

Keeping Informed

As the manifold functions of government come closer and closer to our daily living, a newspaper's basic task of procuring for its readers at all times all information pertinent to public affairs become increasingly important.

The citizen who is fully informed expresses his own opinions. He is neither blindly led nor long misled. But where information about public affairs is withheld, a people may lose their freedom and not realize the loss of it for 100 years.

Placing high value upon an informed citizenry, Abraham Lincoln once said in the dark days of the Civil War: "With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed."

What he said with respect to affairs of national concern is equally true in local matters. People have a right to be fully informed about public matters at every level of government.

When they know about comparative real estate assessments, for example, they can understand equalization. Or when they have the facts and figures about school needs, they can form intelligent opinions about school policies. So long, then as public officials conduct public business in full view of the people and on a plane responsive to public opinion, we can be sure the broad welfare of the people will be faithfully served.

The hour to be feared is that one in which secrecy descends upon our court houses, our school boards, our borough halls or our township meeting places. Locally, in this respect, we have been fortunate. Open doors have been the general rule of our governing bodies. Only on rare occasion is the press unwelcome.

The opportunity to employ secrecy exists here, however, just as it does at state and national levels. And it should be resisted here just as it needs to be eliminated from state and national affairs.

Your right to know, guaranteed by the Federal Constitution itself, can be safeguarded only so long as information about public affairs is fully and freely within the reach of all the people.

Keeping Good Governors

Supporting a constitutional change that would permit Pennsylvania governors more than one term, David L. Lawrence took a position that might well be adopted publicly by candidates of both parties for state executive and legislative offices.

When Pennsylvanians elect a governor, they also give endorsement to his program, and the chief executive should be given ample time to implement it. A new governor, who must deal with a new legislature and get his administration into operation, cannot institute his program in one fell swoop.

It is not unusual for him to barely get a start on his plans in his first two years in office, leaving him only two years to implement the full program. Government has grown so complex that many details require long-range planning beyond the four-year tenure we now allow our governor.

Nor does it make good sense to allow a governor, who has given the commonwealth sound administration, to leave office at the end of four years. If he has a talent for the kind of government the people want, he should be permitted to continue in office.

The one-term limitation is not without some benefits. It assures that the commonwealth will not be saddled with a poor governor for more than four years and it prevents the chief executive from using his political power to build up a personal organization that might continue him in office indefinitely. But these advantages are outweighed by the advantage to be gained by permitting a governor more than one term.—Meadville Tribune

The Pennsylvania Story

Open Primary Remains

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Has the open primary passed from the scene in Pennsylvania today?

Certainly this would seem to be far from the case. If the Pennsylvania Story of the past six issues can be accepted as any indication.

The reason is obvious. The six candidates seeking the gubernatorial nod — four from the Republican side and two Democrats — were each given "their day" in writing this column.

With six candidates, the primary hardly can be classed as a "closed primary" — notwithstanding the fact that some months ago the open primary was "predicted" by a wire service as passing from the Pennsylvania scene!

It is true that the open primary is not quite what many would like to have it. Not quite everyone can run for office — not because of statutory or legal limitations but simply because of "outside" factors or factors beyond their control.

Campaigning is costly today. It is time-consuming. It is energy-sapping — and politically it is deadly.

Nevertheless the essence of the open primary still remains — as witness the fact that six candidates today are seeking their respective party nod in the governorship race May 20.

Much At Stake One of the purposes in having the six candidates write a Pennsylvania Story column was to underscore this very point.

Much is at stake in the upcoming primary — a fact unfortunately too few voters throughout the Keystone State realize. The day has long since passed when the election of a governor of Pennsylvania is a mere passing incident. It is vastly too important — to every one of Pennsylvania's 5,000,000-plus voters.

Looking at it from an everyday aspect alone — Pennsylvania's taxpayers today are playing with a $2,000,000,000 (billion-plus) operation.

That's the governorship in this year 1958.

This is one of the reasons we asked the candidates to write for this column syndicated throughout the state.

We would be remiss if we did not express our sincere thanks to the six gubernatorial aspirants for taking the time and effort from obviously busy schedules to write their columns, using their own words, their own thoughts, their own expressions — and their ideals as to why they should be named their party's gubernatorial standard-bearer.

What they have said and the manner in which they said it should give Pennsylvania voters a composite insight into the candidates they will be called upon to vote for a fortnight hence.

Their approach to the question and their manner of presentation should have provided a unique voter insight — not so much into the bald and flat programs of each — but into the reasoning, approach, attitude and intellectual grasp of each, of the heavy and complex problems facing Pennsylvania's next chief executive.

We can think of one candidate now — without mentioning any names of course — who by his mental approach to what he said, would in this column list's personal opinion, automatically rule himself out of the running. Only one to this writer emerged as a stand-out.

Political and campaign pooh-bah are one thing — a sound intellectual and intelligent understanding is quite another.

Both facets have been demonstrated in the past six days.

Recession Bill Lags

—By E. Simms Campbell

Washington — Despite Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson's recent call for more vigorous action, you can look for the anti-recession drive in Congress to slow down in the coming months. Democrats don't want to be put on the spot for making too big an issue of the economic situation if there should be a business upturn this summer.

There are signs that economic conditions are slowly improving. Republicans are hoping that the recession will be forgotten by the time the November elections are held.

The tax cut issue already has lost much of its appeal for many legislators and President Eisenhower's opposition to heavy public works spending is winning support of Republicans.

The Democrats are sure to use the business slump as campaign ammunition this autumn, but their chances of getting sweeping measures through Congress look more and more slim.

Organizations For Crime

The New York City Youth Board has issued a very fancifully arranged brochure entitled, "Teenage Gangs." After you read it, you are bound to feel great sympathy with the gangs and wonder why those who are murdered by the juvenile gangsters are unwilling to be killed for the good of society.

What is clear from the pamphlet is that no moral criteria enter into the thinking of those who prepared it and who are designated to look after the hoodlums. Let me quote a paragraph: "... People were and are concerned about any group, whether called a 'gang' or not, when that group indulges in activities which are directed against the whole community or against the principles or values on which that community is based. Such activities are called, quite simply, 'anti-social.'"

What are the activities which are called "quite simply, 'anti-social'?" They include murder, narcotics pushing, the raping of juveniles, impairing the morals of the young, mayhem, rioting and all sorts of crimes. These are called "quite simply, anti-social."

And the brochure goes on to give the impression that it is rather normal for teenagers to be anti-social. In fact, after reading this pamphlet issued by the City of New York, I could not help but reach the conclusion that it is normal for a child to be anti-social and that those children who behave themselves and live decent lives are abnormal. So the Youth Board starts with the following premise:

Normal Growth "We know, for instance, that for all adolescents — youngsters in their teens — this is a time of normal physical and psychological growth and change. We know that as a part of this normal growing up process, it is important for a teenager to be a member of a group of young people his own age — his peers.

"Such close group associations are, in fact, one of the most basic and natural needs of the teenager. ... It helps him bridge that gap between childhood and adulthood. ... It offers him many opportunities for positive growth and development." So, the philosophers of the Youth Board do not go to the heart of the issue, which is, that when young people live without morality, they become like beasts. Instead, they take the easier course of blaming it on the twentieth century, international tensions, the cold war, but not on Communism or secularism. The pamphlet says:

"Youngsters belonging to anti-social gangs not only have the general world insecurity to face but must put up with other problems as well."

When Serra shot Ramos, he was undoubtedly thinking of general world insecurity! Maybe he had in mind Nasser's visit to Khrushchev and possibly the visit of the American bankers to Nasser! How silly can these social workers be!

As I read this pamphlet, paid for by the taxpayer who is afraid, in New York, to walk through the city parks lest hoodlums pounce upon him and steal his overcoat, or, as actually happened to a young lady, get stabbed without a word being spoken just because the stabber likes to stab, I wonder what kind of a world the social worker lives in. For instance, mark the following paragraph:

"Police action against gang violence has often been absolutely necessary for the protection of the community. But because the police's function has been primarily to protect the community, not to rehabilitate the gang, this approach was in the long run unproductive in modifying gang activity or in eliminating the problem."

So a social worker takes a gangster, Serra, out for a ride, feeds him hot dogs and soda pop, takes him to a candy store where Serra takes out a loaded gun and shoots a boy called Ramos and the social worker says that whereas he was in this tiny candy store, he did not actually see the shooting. In a word, the Youth Board accepts the gangster's code that it will not squeal to the police, even when murder is committed.

It would seem that an old-fashioned cop, with a strong leaded night-stick and a tough attitude toward life, would do these hardened children more good than all the slapping-on-the-wrist they get from the soft-spoken, kindly intentioned, soda-pop drinking social workers who belong to the Youth Board.

Behind The Scener

In Hollywood by Harrison Carroll

Hollywood — Once an actress always an actress, the saying goes, but, in her happy marriage to Bruno Paglia, Merle Oberon seems to have said goodbye to her career without regrets.

Merle, in town for a few weeks, tells me she and Paglia soon will be leaving for a two-month tour of Japan and other spots in the Orient.

"My husband is not anxious for me to work again," she says. "He is so good to me that if something irresistible came up, I know he would let me do it, but at present I have no work plans."

After Japan the Paglias will spend the rest of the summer in Hollywood.

"I will never sell my house here," declares Merle. "I love it too much. And Bruno loves it, too."

Joanne Dru tried to say goodbye to Lew Ayres, but he called her up and talked her into having dinner. Now the romance may be on again.

Kathryn Grayson and Bob Evans had their first date.

By June L. Fess Parker will know whether he'll get the wished-for release from his Walt Disney contract.

"I'll never cease to be grateful to Mr. Disney for giving me a chance," Fess tells me, "but he doesn't seem to have any important plans for me."

Fess takes full blame for the blowup of his romance with Marcy Rinehart. "I guess it was just my inability to make up my mind."

If some deserving music student wants the cello that Bob Taylor played at Pomona College, Bob is willing to part with it. "Somebody might as well get some good out of it," says Bob on the set of "Party Girl."

And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it.—Luke 19:41.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

Man Reading His Mail "New York City, April 21, 1958: Dear Mr. Winchell: We are more or less strangers to New York and to America. But we have been coming here for many years and we like and admire you and what you are trying to do.

Your defense of Lana Turner is admirable, but don't you think you are going too far? All right, let's have pity, but must we have admiration? Do you mean to imply it is all right to receive a lover when a young daughter is in the house—to change lovers and husbands the way one changes dresses? If one wants to be happy one must first find peace and self respect. Can you as a father, approve and glorify her conduct?

"Please, Mr. Winchell, you who have so much influence on American youth, think before glorifying Lana Turner and making her the example of American womanhood. "We are sending (separately) contributions for your Runyon Fund. You couldn't make Lana Turner a Saint any more than Elsa Maxwell can make you a villain. With admiration, Joan Bony."

"Dear Walter," memos a Reader, "I heard you say that the gov't may not allow you to turn over (to the WW Foundation) the $70,000 for the two weeks at the Tropicana, Las Vegas, to pay the expenses of the Runyon Fund and for donations to other worthwhile causes. Also that you may have trouble with the Tax Dept. who may demand that you pay 91c out of every dollar in taxes and what is left over you can keep for charity. When Bishop Fulton J. Sheen said he didn't want any of the American Broadcasting Company-Admiral sponsor wages, but to turn it over to his favorite cause, The Society for Propagation of the Faith, the gov't granted tax exemption. How about the Edsel show Bing Crosby did with Bob Hope, Rosemary Clooney and Frank Sinatra not long ago? Bing was permitted to give the Edsel lot to his favorite college (Gonzaga) in Spokane, Washington. So ? ? ?"

Robert S. Allen Reports ...

Washington — The on-again-off-again natural gas bill is in process of getting another whirl.

Rep. Oren Harris (D., Ark.), chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, is making a new b c k - stage drive to line up support for the legislation as a far-reaching anti-recession measure.

With the active backing of Rep. Joseph O'Hara (R-Minn.), co-author of the natural gas bill, Harris is contending that its enactment would lead to more than $1 billion in capital expenditures, particularly in the production and use of thousands of tons of pipeline.

This latest bipartisan effort to revive the long-embattled measure has the full approval of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.). He not only favors it, but is helping in every way he can.

At the same time, in discussions with Harris, Rayburn is making it clear he will not bring the bill before the House until positively convinced the votes are in hand to pass it. This has been the canny Texan's position ever since the highly controversial legislation was reported out of Harris' committee a year ago.

Also, Rayburn is bluntly advising Harris to "tell our friends to stop pulling bloopers on this bill. If it weren't for them, it would have been law long ago."

Then she borrows mine. Instead of asking for them back, I go out and buy myself new ones, but there has to be a limit. I have bought more baking pans, pie tins and flour sifters than you would believe. I know this isn't a matter of life or death but I wish you would tell me how to handle it.

Two Events On One Day

Pennsylvania's Veterans of Foreign Wars are plenty steamed up about President Eisenhower's declaration of "Law and Order Day" on May 1.

The reason for the excitement is the fact that the VFW has been observing May 1 as "Loyalty Day" for more than 10 years.

Both days actually were formed to combat the Communist May Day celebrations on the same date.

There are so many special days in a calendar year right now, that they are bound to overlap.

We may have to add several more days on the present total of 365.

Major Joe Murray, commander of the Sixth Marine

Truck Co., will take his forces to camp Lejeune, N.C. for two weeks beginning Monday, June 16.

Many Monroe County men belong to this unit, which has its headquarters in Scranton.

Joe lives in Canadensis and is a teacher at Barrett High School.

"Rocky" Marciano, retired heavyweight champion of the world, will be an overnight guest Friday at "The Chequers" in Mount Pocono.

Officials of the resort revealed that Marciano will arrive about 9 p.m. and depart Saturday morning.

Judge Chester H. Rhodes' first article of the series on "Law Day" appears in the Congressional Record.

The entire series appeared in The Daily Record, where it was read by our congressman, Francis E. Walter.

Walter entered the initial article in the record, page A-4014.

John Masters, purchasing agent at International Boller Works, will attend the National Association of Purchasing Agents Convention to be held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago.

The convention runs from next Sunday through Wednesday.

John lives at 136 Ridgeway Ave., East Stroudsburg.

A. J. Perry, the man who presents the top names in dance bands at Saylor's Lake each Summer, did it again.

Perry presented a Rock 'n Roll Show in Allentown last weekend and it attracted over 5,000 fans.

Many of the fans were from Monroe County.

Allentown firemen patrolled the event, but found it almost impossible to live up to each of the fire laws. There were just too many people.

Natural Gas Bill Revived

Washington — The on-again-off-again natural gas bill is in process of getting another whirl.

Rep. Oren Harris (D., Ark.), chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, is making a new b c k - stage drive to line up support for the legislation as a far-reaching anti-recession measure.

With the active backing of Rep. Joseph O'Hara (R-Minn.), co-author of the natural gas bill, Harris is contending that its enactment would lead to more than $1 billion in capital expenditures, particularly in the production and use of thousands of tons of pipeline.

This latest bipartisan effort to revive the long-embattled measure has the full approval of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.). He not only favors it, but is helping in every way he can.

At the same time, in discussions with Harris, Rayburn is making it clear he will not bring the bill before the House until positively convinced the votes are in hand to pass it. This has been the canny Texan's position ever since the highly controversial legislation was reported out of Harris' committee a year ago.

Also, Rayburn is bluntly advising Harris to "tell our friends to stop pulling bloopers on this bill. If it weren't for them, it would have been law long ago."

Perfume Intriguing But---

Dear Abby: There's a woman in our office who thinks she is hot stuff. She dresses much too young for her age, but the worst part of her is that she uses a perfume that gives me a headache.

When she passes my desk I can smell her perfume for hours. It's not only me. Others in the office have complained about it. How can we tell her without hurting her feelings.

THE OFFICE GANG

Dear Gang: Let the co-worker who is on the friendliest terms with the offender be the spokesman; helpful advice of this nature must be handled with the utmost diplomacy, goodness "nose."

Dear Abby: I don't want to be a mean mother-in-law, but my problem is that my daughter-in-law lets her kids take her pots, pans and baking utensils outside to play with like they were toys. Then she borrows mine. Instead of asking for them back, I go out and buy myself new ones, but there has to be a limit. I have bought more baking pans, pie tins and flour sifters than you would believe. I know this isn't a matter of life or death but I wish you would tell me how to handle it.

MOTHER-IN-LAW

Dear M-I-L: Go to the dime store and buy the kids TOY baking utensils intended for playing outside. Give them to your daughter-in-law to give to her children. Tell her from now on she must keep her baking utensils for baking only. (And be sure to smile when you say it.)

Dear Abby: About that family where the mother is a Protestant and the father is a

This caustic reference was to a testimonial dinner that Texas supporters of the natural gas measure gave for House Republican Leader Joseph

W. Martin, Mass., to raise campaign funds for the GOP congressional campaign this year. Nationwide press accounts of this $100,000 affair caused the bill to be shelved, just as it appeared set for House approval by a close margin.

Working Hard — In this new bipartisan drive to rally support for the legislation, Representative Harris is making both public and private appeals.

An example of the former is his virtually unnoticed speech last week before the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Assn. in Amarillo, Tex. A significant instance of Harris' backstage "selling" is a letter to a House colleague from New England, who has voted against the bill.

It was in the Amarillo speech that Harris argued enactment of the natural gas measure would importantly counter the business slump. Before delivering this address, the Arkansas went over carefully with Speaker Rayburn.

Crux of Harris' anti-recession argument in the Amarillo speech is as follows: "You hear many explanations for this recession. One of the soundest, surely, is that there has been a falling off in consumer purchases of durable goods. . . . Figure for yourself, then, what effect on the recession might come if hundreds of thousands of would-be customers who want natural gas could get it.

"Calculate the number of gas furnaces that would be bought and installed, the number of gas water heaters, of gas stoves, of gas incinerators. . . . Think of the employment that would be created by local distributors. . . . Transmission companies would get their part, or more, in expanding their materials — and — labor market. Can anyone doubt that such buying and expanding would give a tremendous impetus to recovery.

"Certainly the sum total of the capital outlays that are being held up would exceed one billion dollars a year. I submit that this would be an anti-recession step that would cost the taxpayer nothing; that would be carried out entirely by private business funds; that would provide lower energy costs; that would require hundreds of thousands of tons of steel pipe and oil country tubular goods; that would put thousands upon thousands of men back to work; that would be of benefit to the total economy."

Harris' letter to his New England colleague is one of a number he has written to House opponents of the gas bill.

In all these letters, Harris stresses several points; that the measure is widely "misunderstood," and that it is strongly favored by the Federal Power Commission. Highlights of these backstage pleas for support are:

"There is so much misunderstanding about this bill and its effect, that I felt compelled to write you. I sincerely believe that unless Congress enacts some appropriate legislation this year to amend the Natural Gas Act and to alleviate the present untenable situation, thousands of people are going to continue to be deprived of this service, and our nation will undoubtedly be faced with a serious gas shortage in the not-distant future.

"The Federal Power Commission has strongly recommended this bill because it would give the Commission the regulatory tools it needs to work with. No other proposal has been made to the Interstate Commerce Committee to alleviate this problem and to provide a workable plan of regulation."

The new military pay measure will be signed by President Eisenhower, and will become effective as of June 1. . . . Kansas' former Governor Edward Arn has been dropped for consideration for a vacancy on the federal bench. Reason is strong opposition from state and other Republican leaders. They warned that if Arn was named, he would be vigorously opposed in the Senate Judiciary Committee. He claimed support of White House assistant Sherman Adams, but the latter would not confirm that. . . . A banquet is being given in Chicago on May 13 in honor of the late famed Supreme Court Justice, Oliver Wendell Holmes. For the occasion, the Adult Educational Council of Greater Chicago has prepared an interesting profile of Mr. Holmes. Rep. Barratt O'Hara (D., Chicago) has inserted the article in the Congressional Record for wide distribution.

Dear Abby: What's all this fuss about split religions in the family? We have three religions in ours and get along fine. I married a widower who is a Mormon but his deceased wife was Catholic so he is raising his two daughters Catholic. I am a Baptist and practice my own religion. We have never had a harsh word in our home about religion. It is personal opinion, like one's political belief.

Stroudsburg Employment Office Opened For Business In 1938

By John F. Cooney
District Labor Market Analyst
Stroudsburg District Office
Bureau of Employment
Security

FOLLOWING passage of the history-making first Unemployment Insurance Law in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by the State's Legislature in December 1936, a rapid expansion occurred in the number of Public Employment Offices throughout the Commonwealth.

In considering proper sites for new offices to administer the Law, the Commonwealth's Department of Labor and Industry determined that facilities should be provided in Stroudsburg to serve Monroe and Pike counties.

Consequently, a public Employment Service Office was opened for business in Stroudsburg on Jan. 1, 1938. The Employment Service comprises a major division of the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor and Industry.

But the history of public Employment Service in the United States goes far beyond 1938. The earliest date of record for a public Employment Service is 1834 when the City of New York established "A place in every market where those who wanted work could meet those who wanted workers."

A succession of steps in the same direction was taken by various governmental entities at municipal, state and federal levels with Pennsylvania entering the picture by passage of the Bureau of Employment Act in 1915.

In World War I, a national Employment Service was instituted by the Federal Government to provide service in a number of large cities not being served by State Employment Services. After the war, the operation of these national offices was turned over to the State Governments.

Recognizing the interstate nature of many economic and labor market problems, the Wagner-Peyser Act of 1933 established a Federal-State system of public Employment Services in which our present local offices are now an operating unit. Administration is vested in the States. A responsibility for coordinating these services is carried by the Federal Government. There are now over 1,800 full-time local offices in operation throughout the Nation. Some 90 of them are operating in Pennsylvania.

Prior to January 1938, however, the Federal Government in initial efforts to resolve unemployment problems had been operating an Employment Service. The functions of the National Re-employment Service (NRS), as it was generally known, were not as varied as today's counterpart.

Many residents of Monroe and Pike counties affected by the depression of the 1930's were referred by the National Re-employment Service on N. 7th St., Stroudsburg, to work opportunities beginning in December 1933. Most of these referrals were to public work projects of various types including the Civil Works Authority, the Work Program Administration and the Public Works Administration.

During the Summer of 1934 when the new Stroudsburg Post Office was completed, the NRS office was moved to the new building and work referrals continued to be performed from that site. Inauguration of the Unemployment Insurance system throughout Pennsylvania necessitated the opening of many additional State Employment Service Offices since "Registration for work at a public Employment Office" was one of the requirements for legal entitlement to unemployment insurance and a temporary site at 7 N. Sixth St., in Stroudsburg, was utilized as the location for the new employment-benefit disbursing office.

The rush of job seekers soon to be "eliminated" taxed the facilities of the new office and the initial weeks of operation were trying ones as daily crowds jammed the new office to file claims for unemployment insurance.

In February of 1938 more spacious and adequate quarters were obtained in the Stroud Theatre Building.

Itinerant service was established at Milford to eliminate long travel by residents of Pike County. Employment interviewers and claims clerks from the local office traveled to Milford one day each week to provide local service. Older residents will recall the long lines of claimants which daily crowded into the local office and its itinerant point. Changes in administrative procedures, including digit scheduling and reporting, have long since evened out the peak loads and permitted more efficient operations.

One of the requirements of the new Law specified that it was to be administered entirely by personnel selected on a merit or Civil Service basis. Accordingly, by 1939, the entire staff of the local office was on a Civil Service basis.

The wisdom which guided the legislature in making this decision has long since been fully justified, for the Bureau of Employment Security is regarded as one of the State's most efficient and economically operated Departments contributing substantially to the economic well-being of the Commonwealth and its citizens, whom it serves.

Especially during the present business recession has the value and worth of the Unemployment Insurance system been demonstrated. Designed to provide workers who become unemployed through no fault of their own with a measure of weekly income until such time as they can be re-employed, the system in the present emergency is serving its purpose admirably. In Pennsylvania during recent months payments have been averaging well over one million dollars a day.

In 20 years of operation, 1938 through 1957, the Stroudsburg office has certified claims for Unemployment Insurance totaling $1,539,000.00. Despite the flood of claims activity which accompanied the opening for the Stroudsburg Office in January 1938 the basic objective of the Employment Service, "To place the worker in a self-sustaining job," was never out of sight and continuing efforts are made to find a suitable job for those persons filing a work application.

Since 1938 and through 1957, a total of 34,294 new applications for work have been accepted by the Stroudsburg Office. During the same period the local office assisted in placing 33,995 persons in employment.

In Autumn of 1938, a disastrous fire occurred in the building in which the local Employment Office was located necessitating removal to a new site. Fortunately, most of the records were rescued and it was possible to resume business at 827 Main Street with only a day's interruption in service.

In March of 1943 the office again removed to a new location, this time to 79 S. Courtland St., in East Stroudsburg where it remained until the present change.

The Public Employment Service has come a long way since those early days. New tools and techniques have been developed and incorporated into procedures to improve the routine method of selecting workers for jobs and to place the business of "matching jobs and men" on a more scientific basis.

The first of the new tools was the Dictionary of Occupational Titles (DOT) developed by the United States Employment Service of the United States Department of Labor. Constantly revised and brought up to date, the current volume defines over 40,000 job titles by which American workers earn their livelihood. Modern interviewing techniques, occupational counseling, aptitude testing, occupational services to industry, development of a comprehensive labor market information program, are some of the techniques utilized by the Employment Service to speed the bringing together of the unemployed worker and the best available job for him.

The location of a full-time functioning Employment Office in Stroudsburg brings all these facilities and services to the employers and workers of this area on a non-fee basis. The extent to which the area's employers utilize these facilities in large measure determines the necessity and desirability of retaining a full-functioning Employment Service office in a given community.

Employers in the Pocono Area are invited and urged to utilize the facilities of the local office, particularly its job placement machinery, by placing their job orders with the local office. By doing so, the permanent value of the new office at 408 Main St. will be assured and workers and employers alike will have available at all times the facilities and services of a modern public employment office.

With the bombing of Pearl Harbor in December 1941 and the urgent necessity of the Nation gearing itself for all-out war, the effectiveness of a public employment service was again demonstrated.

It is significant that the public Employment Service was one of the first agencies of government to be mobilized. The urgent necessity for a central governmental agency to recruit workers for important war work and staffing the mushrooming industrial machine of our country was plainly seen.

On Jan. 1, 1942, by Presidential order, the United States Employment Service assumed direct operation of all the State Employment Services and they were designated a Federal Agency.

On Sept. 17 of that same year, the War Manpower Commission was authorized to prosecute the Nation's all-out effort of World War II in the field of worker mobilization. Then came the occupational questionnaires, prepared by the Local Selective Service Boards to locate the skills useful in the war effort, touching the lives of all the area's male workers between the ages of 18 and 45.

These records were classified within the coding structure of the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, the first edition of which was published only a few years previously. A unit in the employment office remained constantly on the skill-seeking project. The expanding files dove-tailed with the rise of job orders from essential industries.

The industries themselves held status as critical, essential and less essential, in accordance with categories established by the War Manpower Commission in coordination with military requirements. Moreover, individual establishments in less essential industries, by voluntary agreement, accepting employment "ceilings" above which an excess of workers was made available for referral to essential industry.

The movement of workers from non-essential and less essential to essential jobs was governed by a cooperative system among employers, usually through the public Employment Office. A statement of availability, commonly known as a "release," was the instrument by which the worker moved from one establishment to another. Ordinarily, with common understanding among all persons involved, the flow of workers to essential industries proceeded quite smoothly. Occasionally, such incidents as the refusal of release by an employer, the quitting of a worker in an essential industry, the hiring of a worker unavailable under the plan, or a question of the physical fitness of a worker to perform an essential job, would create a case for summary "adjudication" by the employment stabilization officer in the Employment Office. The decisions of this officer were subject to a local labor-management committee.

A succession of managerial changes occurred during the trying days of World War II. Jack Muschok, who was manager until he entered military service in April of 1942, was succeeded by Mrs. Sue Sommers. Subsequent assignments included Don Young, Jack Becker, Carl Denz until the appointment of the present manager, John Dougherty in March 1955.

With the end of World War II came a different set of problems. With veterans returning from the military services in increasing numbers, one of the principal tasks confronting the Employment Service was to assist these young war veterans to obtain jobs as well as the sizeable administrative problem of handling claims for compensation under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act (SRA).

The State Employment Service today carries out six employment functions in accomplishing its objectives. These are:

1. A placement service to assist employers in finding workers, and to assist workers in finding employment or reemployment promptly in jobs for which they are suited by skills, knowledge, abilities and interests.

2. Employment counseling to help workers facing job-choice or job-adjustment problems, discover and evaluate their interests and potential abilities, formulate suitable vocational plans, and find employment in line with their plans.

3. Special service for veterans to provide them with the maximum of job opportunities in the field of gainful employment through the use of total employment service staff and facilities in supplying counseling and placement services.

4. Industrial services to assist employers, labor groups, and organizations to analyze employment problems involving effective use of skills and abilities of workers; and to apply techniques and materials developed by the Employment Service which are useful in resolving such problems.

5. Labor Market Information, assembled by the State Employment Service, to serve as a basic for informed action on the part of workers, employers, labor groups, agencies, and community groups concerned with employment.

6. Community participation on a continuing basis to contribute to the economic health of the community by cooperating with community organizations and institutions on matters affecting employment.

Wood Remains Most Vital Material For New Homes

IN AN ERA when science is constantly coming up with new "miracle materials" why is nature's oldest building product, wood, still so vital in home construction?

Here are a few of the most important reasons:

1. Beauty. The texture, grain, and color of wood can't be duplicated in the laboratory. These qualities help give the home the warmth and richness of appearance it should have.
2. Warm to the touch. In windows of ponderosa pine, for example, the inside of the sash and frame stay warm, even in the coldest weather. This keeps moisture from collecting and running down to damage interior paint and wallpaper.
3. Decoration. Wood can be painted, enameled, stained, or given a clear, natural finish. This is important to home decorating, inside and out.

Labor Costs

4. Low labor costs. Windows of ponderosa pine are available in units with frame and sash fitted together at the factory. The unit is simply slipped into the opening, and nailed in place.
5. Long life. Wood will last as long as any other component of a structure. Wood windows and doors of ponderosa pine are scientifically treated with preservatives to strengthen their natural resistance to weather.
6. Variety of design. Wood windows and panel doors are available in stock from building material dealers in numerous styles and sizes.
7. Versatility. The easy workability of wood makes it possible to manufacture stock windows, and panel and louver doors of ponderosa pine to suit any architectural design.

Reasons Vary For Adding New Roof

WHEN A house gets a new roof, is it always because the old one was worn out?

This used to be the case, say roofing contractors across the country, but not any more. Today more and more homeowners are recognizing the role their roof has in making their homes look better. Roofing has become an important decorating material.

Another factor is the economy of a new roof. In most parts of the country, re-roofing with asphalt shingles doesn't cost much more than a quality paint job—sometimes less.

Tired Of White

Here are some examples of home-owners who've had new roofs applied for appearance:

1. A family in Ohio, tired of their white house, applied a new beige roof over their dark green, roofing and used the new roof as a "color key" to paint the house in soft, pastel yellow.
2. A Michigan family bought an old, 3-story house with a light red roof in good condition. Acting on the advice of an architect, they re-roofed with black asphalt shingles to make the tall house look lower.

Brown More Rustic

3. In California, a man and wife didn't like the green roof on their house because it spoiled their "rustic" decor. They re-roofed with a soft brown blend of asphalt shingles.
4. In Wisconsin, a family planned to sell their home. The roof was giving good protection, but looked shabby, spoiling the appearance of the whole house. They re-roofed with a rich gray, and the house was quickly sold.

5. In Oregon, a family moved into a new, modern house with a low-slope roof covered with a dull, black material. Informed by a roofing contractor that asphalt shingles can be applied to roofs with pitches as low as 2 inches per foot, they ordered a new roof of pastel pink.

Re-roofs With White

6. A new roof can be a factor in comfort as well as appearance and protection. In Connecticut, a home-owner re-roofed with white asphalt shingles over his black roof to take advantage of the heat-reflecting quality of white.
7. In another summer comfort case, a couple in Louisiana re-roofed with ivory gray after they installed central air conditioning. Their old dark colored roof absorbed heat, but the light color reflected it, making the air conditioning less expensive to operate.

Pleasing Appearance

FOR A PLEASING overall appearance in a bathroom decorated with Marlite plastic-finished paneling on the walls, cover built-in cabinets with this same material. The pre-decorated hardboard is mounted to cabinet surfaces with contact cement. The paneling can be used by itself, without any backing, for small sliding doors. Marlite is available at lumber yards in plain colors, wood-grains and marble patterns.

Two-Level Home May Be Answer

IF YOU'RE partial of two-levels and have no special reason for needing a third bedroom, this design is especially for you. With modest exterior dimensions, it can be located on a small city lot as well as a rolling country acreage.

Inside, thanks to the advantages of split-level living, rooms are generous in size and are complimented with an abundance of luxury appointments.

A high sloping roof and massive chimney immediately identifies this model as something more than ordinary. The windows provide an unusual functional pattern with vertical and horizontal directions.

Room arrangement on the first level is ideal. With those hundred and one daily trips to the front door, positioning the kitchen in close proximity to the entrance certainly makes good sense to the harried home-maker. The kitchen corridor design is also very sensible. Not only does it save hundreds of needless steps a day but also permits an abundance of cabinet and counter space.

Laundry Equipment

Instead of squeezing laundry equipment in with meal preparation appliances, the architect has clearly defined an area for this important chore. And what better place than adjacent to the side entrance.

While they might appear to be architectural whims on the outside, those 13 glass panels pay off in the interior in the form of exceptional good daylighting. Servicing the living room, they make this area as delightful as a summer picnic. Added impressiveness is imparted by the huge fireplace occupying one entire wall.

The home's two bedrooms and a bath comprise the upstairs. Both bedrooms are endowed with walk-in wardrobe closets. Privacy is obtained as they face the rear.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. Electrical layout is indicated on the blue prints.

The plan contains 812 sq. ft. and 13,256 cu. ft. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for Design number H-531 may be purchased for $9.75. For three additional sets add $25. You may also purchase a plan book showing 56 additional designs for 60¢ postpaid. Address all questions and orders to Homograp Home Plan Department of The Daily Record Warren, Mich.

Praise Heaped On Home By Wright

THE FIRST prefabricated house designed by Frank Lloyd Wright has been praised by critics as being comparable to many homes the great architect has designed for individuals at costs of $100,000 and more.

Wright's "prefab," manufactured by Marshall Erdman & Associates, of Madison, Wis., is a 3 or 4-bedroom, 2½-bath home that sells for $35,000 to $50,000.

Appearance

The exterior appearance, the house is long and low, stretching 83 feet. Its length is accentuated by the unique horizontal battens used on the roof and sidewalls. The roof, of brick-red asphalt shingles, has a distinctive double pitch, with ridge off center.

Wright specified asphalt shingles, Erdman says, because they are economical, yet, provide a quality roof in keeping with the price range of the house.

Windows—more than 40 of them in awning styles of ponderosa pine—are grouped in long, horizontal bands and in large geometric patterns. Installed in this manner, they give a distinctive appearance to the house, yet go along with one of Wright's musts—that his houses be located on scenic sites, and that the view be unobstructed from inside the house.

Add Distinction

DON'T FRET over a broken glass on a coffee table top. Replace it with a panel of wood grain or marble pattern Marlite to give the table a distinctive appearance. Attach the predecorated hardboard panel to the coffee table with contact cement.

Ticket To Freedom

30,000 'Tickets' Goal Of United Jewish Appeal Drive

THE TICKET was a facsimile of the thousands that have been furnished to Jewish men, women and children for immigration out of Iraq, Hungary, Egypt, North Africa and DP camps across Eurasia.

Holding the facsimile was Sam Block, a Stroudsburg newsstand proprietor and Monroe County United Jewish Appeal chairman for this year's drive.

"We must help furnish 30,000 such tickets to Jews who will leave Poland this year," Sam explained. "Other Jews will need similar tickets to bring them out of North African countries and the Middle East."

Thinking back, Sam recalled a story that stemmed from the immigration of a middle-aged Jewish couple and their 14-year-old daughter from Wroclaw, Poland, to freedom and a new life in Israel last year.

"It seemed that the wife, Nehama, was expecting a second child and feared that the trip would have to be delayed until the event took place. But her husband shook his head and told her: 'We cannot wait, and I think of the baby when I say we must go now.'"

The trip was made, and it was as hard as Nehama had foreseen, Sam continued. On board the ship to Haifa they met other emigrants such as themselves.

When the boat docked at its destination, he related, Jewish Agency workers went aboard to greet and assist the refugees. As Nehama surveyed their new homeland, her husband's decision won a beaming smile and a later remark, "Our child will be born in Israel."

That was about a year ago, Sam continued. Since that time, the infant has been born, Nehama's husband was assisted in finding work, and the daughter was given a scholarship in a girl's trade school.

The family are in a transient immigrant settlement, he said, where they live in asbestos sheet cabins. When it rains, they wade through the mud to get to work and to visit. There is no electricity.

In lieu of these inconveniences, Sam remarked, the family recently proclaimed happily: "We're living in freedom now, and that's better than listening to talk about it!"

The tickets and the first year's absorption of each new immigrant costs more than a $1,000, Sam pointed out. This year the UJA seeks a $100,000,000 Rescue Fund, over and above proceeds from its regular campaign, Sam added, to transfer and resettle tens of thousands of Jews seeking new lives. The majority will receive haven in Israel, he said, and the remainder will either come to the United States to be forwarded to other freedom-loving countries.

At the same time, the regular UJA campaign must provide financial means to give daily help to more than a half million Jews who need welfare, medical and rehabilitation assistance in Europe, in Moslem countries, in Israel and in Poland.

In Poland, he remarked, the UJA-supported Joint Distribution Committee, at the Polish Government's invitation, is operating again after an absence of eight years, to give assistance to some 10,000 Jews recently repatriated from the Soviet Union.

"Through both the Rescue Fund and the regular campaign," Sam concluded, "the UJA will directly benefit a total of 615,000 Jews this year."

The nationwide United Jewish Appeal, major beneficiary of the (Please turn to page 12)

Money Necessary

HARRISBURG (U)—Commerce Secretary William Davlin said yesterday the Legislature will have to appropriate eight million dollars to continue the commonwealth's industrial development program for another four years.

Look closely. Neighborhood decay is a threat to your personal and economic security. Slum blight is a stealthy cancer. It strikes unseen to rot the core of many an outwardly healthy community.

Talk with your neighbors. Do they think the neighborhood is secure? Carelessness is contagious. Are surrounding communities free of decay? Are nearby homes kept up properly, streets clean, parks plentiful? Are schools, shopping facilities, traffic regulations adequate?

Better neighborhoods depend on such things. Your neighborhood depends on you to stay alert for telltale signs of blight. Your neighbors will follow your lead in organizing and joining community-improvement groups.

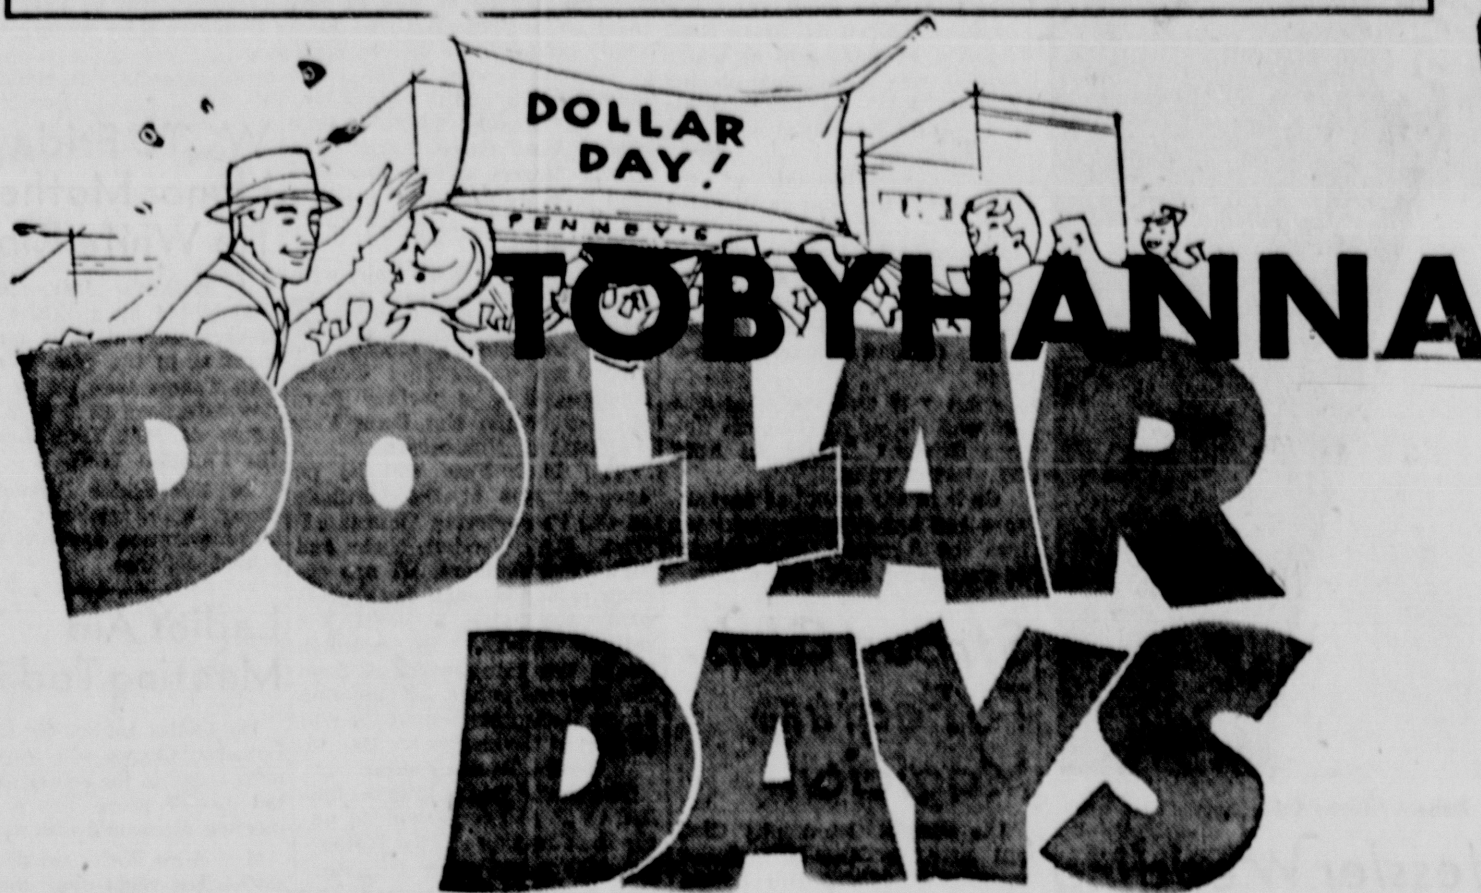

Start now. Keep up your own home. Join your neighbors in group action for the community good. Write for practical information to:

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

It would be selfish of us, indeed, to grieve for Ora Levering, when she so willingly bridged the gap that separated her, even for these few brief days, from Dr. Bill.

No, the heaviness of heart must be for ourselves, for giving so little and far too late to someone who gave such a full measure of devotion to this community.

The list of organizations to which she belonged is an impressive one, but even more impressive was the role she played in those organizations. Never passive, she was the heart of any group to which she belonged.

Her enthusiasm, her energy and drive, her perseverance, was as compelling, as steady, and as vital as a heart beat, propelling everything on its appointed rounds.

Of course, we appreciated her. Younger women, pining to keep up her pace, would gasp "She's a marvel." The organizations which she served counted on her, consulted her, and admired her. But the public honors which she so richly deserved were left undone.

For one thing, she seemed so indistinct, and the possibility that that mighty heart might tire seemed as remote as your own heart stopping. And for another, everybody stood a little in awe of Ora—and weren't quite sure how she would take a tribute which might seem to be putting her on the shelf.

Well, it's too late now—that has been the burden of regret I have heard repeated from many lips these last few weeks. But really it isn't. The one tribute she would cherish above all others would be that you who follow her keep the projects she cherished alive and serving the community she loved, and which truly loved her.

Husband-And-Wife Team Should Divide Duties

By Anne Heywood

I often think of the old expression "The operation was successful but the patient died" when I contemplate some of the husband-and-wife businesses which come to my attention in the mail.

Idyllic Venture
Many couples dream of the day when they can set up a business of their own instead of having the husband take orders from "that monster in the corner office." They picture it as an idyllic venture, working together and being able to keep all the profits in the family.

That, at least, is the way Mr. and Mrs. K. felt about it.

Here is part of Mrs. K's letter: "Our shop is really quite successful and we are already making a small profit although we have been in business only a little under eight months."

"Our location is good and we had enough initial capital. We knew the field well, as my husband was in the supplier's end for about twenty years and I have worked in similar shops, off and on, to gain the experience."

Marriage Is In Danger
"But, even though the shop is successful, our marriage is practically on the point of breaking up. We always got along pretty well together, but now we are at each other's throat most of the time."

"We work together on everything—the buying, the record-keeping, the selling, the advertising and the window display. Sometimes we agree, but many times we disagree. The trouble is we take our disagreements home with us, and our private life has become a series of squabbles over things that went on at the shop."

"I hate to pull out because we have made such a good beginning and can see great financial security ahead."

The trouble here is one that happens many times in this kind of a project and that is the fact that both of them work on all phases of the business.

Stiffing Togetherness
This means that, in the first place, they never have a moment's thought or breath apart from each other—and it's a rare marriage that can take that much stifling togetherness.

Second, being members of the human race, each of them is bound to be better at some

Summer Book Fair, Study Of Great Books On AAUW Schedule; Dinner Held

Big things are in store for the coming season for the American Assn. of University Women. A Summer Book Fair, designed to interest tourists as well as local residents, will be held the first week in August. A Great Books Course will be among the new study groups to be offered next year.

Announcement of these and other projects was made at the final meeting of the year, a dinner on Monday night at the Green View Guest Farm. Mrs. David Mazer, serving her second term as president, presided at the meeting, attended by 55 members.

The Summer Book Fair, with the proceeds to be used for the national AAUW Fellowship Fund to provide money for study for outstanding women scholars, is a departure from the past when the Book Fair was held in November.

The Book Fair will be an open-air sale in the vestibule at the Presbyterian Church offices. Mrs. Wendell Wicks and Mrs. Glen Sanborn III are co-chairmen, and each member is pledged to give at least five saleable books. In addition, books are being solicited from the general public. A meeting of the Book Fair committee will be held at the church on May 13.

Great Books Course
The Great Books Course, limited to 25 members, will be under the direction of Miss Katherine McFarland with Dr. Marjorie Smith as co-chairman. The group will meet twice a month in the children's library at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, beginning in September.

Also in the Art Study Group Department are two additional study groups: a fine arts program with Dr. Macdonald Powers as chairman and Mrs. Nicholas Stowell, assistant chairman; and a drama study group with Mrs. Harold James, leader.

The Mental Health Study Group will also be continued under the co-chairmanship of Miss Eloise Bryan and Mrs. Elmer Vesely.

Other chairmen announced by Mrs. Mazer include: mass media and communications, Miss Marion Gates; legislation, Mrs. Louise Weiss Mirandon; publicity, Mrs. Horace Westbrook; Mrs. Robert Haigh; Status of Women, Mrs. Lee Koehler; news letter, Mrs. M. R. Kiefer; Mrs. Horace Westbrook; Mrs. W. E. Thorne; Mrs. Warren Miller; Mrs. Robert Harper; Higher education, Mrs. Willie Turner King; elementary and secondary, Mrs. Robert McKee; hospitality, Mrs. Weidon Garrison; national building, Mrs. Robert Hartman; telephone, Mrs. J. Charles Smith; advisor, Mrs. J. L. Cohen; historian, Mrs. John Appel.

The upsurge in study groups and activities reflects the growth in membership during the past year when 25 new members were added. Mrs. Walter Caulfield, membership chairman, will continue to serve next year with Mrs. Arthur Ifft, Mrs. Neal Cokerly and Mrs. LeRoy Koehler as other members of the committee. Membership in AAUW is open to any women graduated from a college accredited by the national association.

Take-Off on Clubwomen
The program, introduced by Mrs. Sumner Bossler, featured an original monologue by Mrs. James Galloway, of Bethlehem, with Susan Comegys playing the piano interludes.

"Women of the Federation" was the title of the skit during which she took the part of the president of the club, the officers, and the entertainment, with the members recognizing with delight familiar incidents carried just to the point of absurdity.

Miss McFarland and Mrs. Mazer also gave brief reports of the convention held in Harrisburg.

200 Children Attend Co. Bible Club Rally

Approximately 200 persons attended the Bible Club Rally for classes taught by Mr. and Mrs. David Ball and their assistants, and held at the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon, May 4. The theme of the rally was "Sailing For Christ," and upon entering the church vestibule a sailing ship was prominently displayed.

Pre-school, Effort, Hauserville, West Main Street, Stokes Mill, King Street, Fifth Street, Ninth Street and Bartonville clubs were represented.

The rally opened with group singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" with Mrs. Arthur West playing piano accompaniment. During the song a representative from each club carrying an identification banner led the march of Sword Drill contestants to their seats. All marchers wore blue and white sailor caps.

Members of the Pre-school Club were first on the program with Jackie Batchler and Donna Marie Vail reciting memory verses.

Gary Thompson, of the Stokes Mill Club sang a solo. Sword Drill contests—finding scripture references—were conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Ball. Winner in the Junior group, for children in third grade or under, was won by Karen Rinker, of the Effort Club. Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rinker. John Field was winner in the contest for children in grade 4 and higher. John, a member of the Bartonville Club, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field. Karen received a game of Bible dominoes and John was awarded a picture viewer and set of slides.

There is good news for Wyckoff customers in the trip to California now being made by Bill Wells, our fashion merchandising manager, Carrie Rusk, head of our sportswear department, and Thelma Gordon, buyer of our children's and girls' wear. As this is written, they are scouring the west coast markets for the very latest in casual attire from a section of our country that knows how to inject glamour into all phases of lazy livin'. So keep your eyes open for their purchases, which will soon be in our store. They should be worth seeing—and reasonably priced.

Fashions for After Five is the descriptive title of a plastic carryall which retails at only 1.00 in our accessories department. These pretty little carryalls have a neat zippered section, and space for grooming needs. ## Daily Record Survey

Are Changes Necessary In Our Education?

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of articles on Monroe County education. Each will be based on the results of the county-wide survey conducted by the author for the Daily Record.

By Leonard Randolph
IS THERE really a need for change in the education system we now have?

A majority of the teachers, administrators and others answering the survey indicate that there is. But many feel that most of our system is good as it now stands.

If there is to be any change in education, the general feeling among educators is that it must be made on the basis of "what is good" in the present system.

Any totally negative effort to bring about change will result in chaos and in the destruction of some phases of educational philosophy which, local experts feel, have raised the standard of the schools.

But there is a strong current of opinion which says that evaluation of schools is something which should be done on a regular, continuing basis rather than waiting for an "agonizing reappraisal."

Spokesmen for Parent-Teacher Associations, in particular, feel that the study of education in the schools — its aims, its execution and its quality — is a matter of everyday importance.

Here are some typical PTA comments in response to the final question:

—Standards and requirements for all supervisors need to be set up. A more realistic set of standards for high school graduation needs to be established and re-evaluated from time to time. All State Department of Public Instruction activities should be taken out of politics.

—I think a more effective way of testing results of our instruction program would be helpful. Certain basic minimums should be demanded, but education programs themselves should be administered locally, providing graduates of that system can meet the standards achieved by other students from other areas as well as the minimums required by the State.

—There must be something wrong with a system which offers a student of one county an entirely superior (or inferior) education to another student in the same State. Naturally, we always have the financial problems, but many inadequacies are not the result of inadequate funds.

—Classroom teaching methods and courses should be regulated by law. Make it mandatory that schools emphasize the reading program. The percentage of seventh grade students who read on a fifth and sixth grade level is shocking. Most important: The State should limit the number of students per teacher. It has been proven that this cannot be left to local districts.

In our own district this year we have had as high as 45 to 50 pupils per teacher in the elementary grades. Any elementary teacher will tell you that they cannot do a good teaching job with such heavy overloads.

No matter what their opinions of local education may be, there is a general unity among those answering the survey on several key issues:

That any system of education can stand appraisal and, in fact, benefits from it. Some teachers may feel that "carping" is often substituted for genuine "appraisal". But they have little quarrel with an attempt to understand what is being done, its weaknesses or strong points.

That a major part of the weakness, when it exists, can be traced to inadequacies in personnel, space, equipment or administration.

That there is a general lack of understanding of present-day education not only among members of the public but also between various levels of the school as it exists.

There is a strong plea for more cooperation to build and maintain better schools all along the line.

Without that cooperation and singleness of purpose, no evaluation will accomplish much.

Three Lutheran Churches To Combine In Service

DUE TO the hospitalization of Rev. Herbert Gernert, Jr., Pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Minisink Hills, and Zion Lutheran Church, Middle Smithfield, there will be no scheduled services in these two parishes on Mother's Day Sunday afternoon.

However, Pastor Gernert stated last night that St. Mark's and St. Paul's will unite with St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Smithfield, Craigs Meadows, for worship at 8 p.m. in the Craigs Meadows Church.

This will be the first time in many years that these three historic Lutheran churches will officially combine for worship. Their combined histories comprise more than 300 years of co-existent church history in the area.

Rev. William F. Wunder will be in charge of this combined service at Craigs Meadows.

Pastor Gernert was admitted to the Allentown General Hospital early this week and is convalescing from surgery.

50-50 Break Senator Goal 82 Entries In For Annual PM Sports Car Hill Climb

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Winning at least 50 per cent of the time is still Cookie Lavagetto's goal for his startling Washington Senators. But don't get the fellow wrong. "That doesn't mean I won't be gratified if we play better than 500 ball," he assured Washington's dazed fandom Tuesday. Lavagetto, who relieved Charley Dressen as manager last May, set his sights on 50-50 for '58 in September when he signed a new one-year contract.

Cookie's Crumbs
At that point the Senators were Cookie's crumbs, swept into the American League cellar and disdained by the citizenry. At this point they're frosting on the cake for patrons of Griffith Stadium whose appetite for victory has been grossly neglected in recent years.

As of Tuesday afternoon Washington was second in the league, of all places, only a game behind New York. Their 8.5 record was shockingly better than 500 for a team universally expected to stumble down the basement stairs again with little fuss.

Home attendance is up nearly 15,000 over the same number of games last year. And the customers are as noisy as kids at a circus.

"The players appreciate that," Lavagetto said. "They talk about it in the dugout. They want to keep it that way. They know you can't beg people to come to the ball park. You have to force 'em there with the kind of baseball they deserve."

Not Optimists
Only the delirious believe the Senators can keep 'em yelling all season long, but they're getting the kind of baseball they deserve right now — fair pitching, improved fielding, good hitting and late-inning rallies. Washington has come from behind for six of its nine victories.

Ask Lavagetto what accounts for it, and before he goes into the subject of successful trades he singles out Pedro Ramos. This 23-year-old right-hander has pitched two complete games, triumphs and set up two others before leaving for pinch hitters in the eighth.

Deals with Boston which brought first baseman Norm Zachin, outfielder Albie Pearson and second baseman Ken Aspromonte to town have helped, too.

Bragan, Lane Showing No Signs Of Blast

NEW YORK (AP)—Ever since Bobby Bragan and Frank Lane got together in Cleveland, some baseball people have been waiting for the explosion. So far, there is no sign of it.

Bragan has been the quiet one this spring. No sit down strikes. No soda pop for the umpires. No feuds.

This was his first trip to New York as manager of the Indians and Bragan spoke of it with a light touch. He even was asking for the second game.

"If I should get up tomorrow morning, walk to the newsstand and read for the first time about a big trade Lane had pulled, I wouldn't be upset," he said. "He can announce a deal without consulting me and it's all right with me. Actually, it probably wouldn't happen that way. He usually calls in me, Eddie Stanky and the other coaches when we are thinking of making a change."

Respects Frank
"In my short acquaintance with him, I have learned great respect for Lane's baseball knowledge. I'd rate him in the same league with Branch Rickey for shrewdness."

"He wants to win the worst way. He is a real 100 per cent fan."

Bragan has been able to concentrate on managing, not talking, this year. Although the Indians are being rebuilt, the club's 10-10 record isn't bad.

"How'd you like that game Hoyt Wilhelm pitched," he asked. "First time he ever started in the majors. He'll start again, too, against that sort of club (Boston). (Wilhelm gave up only five in 11 innings in a game Boston won in the 12th, 2-1, on Sunday.)"

Herb Score's recent arm trouble has put added pressure on the Indians' thin pitching staff. Bob Lemon is back home in San Diego and Steven Riddick and Clarence Churn have been sent to the minors.

Paul Smith Sold To Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—Paul Leslie Smith, outfielder—first baseman, Tuesday was bought by the Chicago Cubs from the Pittsburgh Pirates for the $20,000 waiver price.

Smith, 27, batted .253 in 51 games for the Pirates last season after his return from two years in the Army. He came up through the Pirates farm system and hit .321 for Havana of the International League before entering the service.

PM Sports Car Hill Climb

EIGHTY-TWO entries, consisting of practically every make of sports cars, have been received for the third annual Pocono Mountains Sports Car Association's Fox Gap Hill Climb.

The classic, featuring some of the top drivers in this field, will be held May 16 and 17.

Hill Climb officials announced last night that more applicants are expected before the deadline May 10. More than 100 cars are expected to race against time in the climb.

The site of the runoffs is on Route 90, south of Stroudsburg, and is approximately 8-10 of a mile in length.

Four hairpin curves, plus a steep incline are some of the hazards the drivers must overcome before hitting the stretch.

In practice runs, several of the drivers have said that the fully-paved course is in excellent condition.

Climb aides said that the high banks which outline the course will provide excellent viewing for the spectators taking in the event.

Electrical Timers
Electrical timers will be used to time the cars. The timers will be supplied by the Eastern (Penn.) Sports Car Club.

A special ladies continental touring class event is also one of the many extra events on tap for the two days.

New Orleans Boys Battle For Crown

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Joe Brown and Ralph Dupas, a couple of New Orleans boys who couldn't meet in their home town, will battle here Wednesday night with the world's lightweight championship as the prize.

Brown, a Negro, holds the title and is making his first defense of the year. He says he wishes he could have done it in New Orleans but the Louisiana interracial law prevented it.

Plans Knockout
Anyway, said the champion as he rested at his secluded camp 20 miles from Houston, he'll win the fight, probably by a knockout and early. In fact, Brown was so confident of victory over Dupas that he already was talking about when he would defend his title against Kenny Lane, the No. 1 contender. Dupas is rated No. 2.

"By the time I get to Lane they'll have it worked out so we can fight in New Orleans," said Brown. "That will be the big money."

Brown said he figures to knock out Dupas "maybe by the fifth or sixth round. But I'm going to try to do it in the first round. I don't want to have to work any more than necessary."

Rain Cancels Yesterday's Sports Tilts

RAIN which has drenched the area continuously the last five days continued to play havoc with the area's sports program.

Yesterday three scholastic baseball games were postponed because of the inclement weather. Called off were the Palmerton at Stroudsburg night game, East Stroudsburg at Coplay day duel, and the Monroe Scholastics' Barrett at Chestnut Hill contest.

Stroudsburg High officials announced that the Mountaineers will make up its game with Palmerton tomorrow at Gordon Giffels field, starting at 4 p. m.

Eastburg, weather permitting, will meet Coplay on the Wildcats diamond today.

Also hit by the weather yesterday were two games in the Monroe County and Industrial softball leagues.

Soviet Gives Friendship Fete To Yanks

MOSCOW (AP)—The American basketball stars wound up their Soviet tour Tuesday night with a friendship dinner at which Russian men's and women's teams agreed to play a series of games in the United States starting Feb. 1.

Kellum Johnson, president of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union, said arrangements had been completed for ranking Soviet teams to play at least six games each in the United States next spring, including appearances in Denver, Peoria, Kansas City, New York and San Francisco.

"We hope to show them the same hospitality they have given us," Johnson said. "We know we can show them some good basketball."

No "Scars"
There were no scars showing from the dozen games as the American men and women—a dozen each—sat down at the friendship dinner with the same number of Russian players, plus two Soviet Union sports officials who hosted the event in Moscow's famed Metropole Hotel.

The American men's squad kept their all-winning record against Soviet players intact by taking six straight games—here two each in Moscow, Tiflis and Leningrad.

The American girls, including six members of the Nashville business College AAU champions, dropped their two big matches to an all-Soviet girls team in Moscow, but captured all four events outside their capital.

JERE YOUNG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Young, of Dingmans Ferry, Pa., is again rowing bow in the University of Pennsylvania varsity crew. He handled the bow oar in the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta at Syracuse last year.

The former East Stroudsburg High School basketball player was a member of the Red and Blue crew that defeated Rutgers and then captured the Childs Cup on the Schuylkill River for the first time in three years, defeating Princeton and Columbia.

Saturday the Pennsylvania varsity eight rows on the Charles River, Boston, Mass., seeking to wrest the Adams Cup from Harvard in a triangular regatta that also includes the Naval Academy.

Jere is the second member of his family to row at Pennsylvania. An older brother, Ron, was on the lightweight crew that rowed in the Henley Royal Regatta on the Thames River, England, three years ago when Jere was a freshman.

A senior in the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, Jere has served as president of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and is a member of the Varsity Club and Varsity Boat Club.

East Stroudsburg High will be represented at the 15th annual Eastern Pennsylvania Coaches Clinic at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College in the persons of head football coach Jack Kist and basketball coach Doug Schoonover.

The clinic, which will have some of the topcoaches in the nation on its instructing staff, is slated for the middle of June.

Clint Getz takes issue with the high runs supposedly run up by the Lake Harmony team during the 1957 Pocono Mountain Baseball League race.

Getz, president of the PMBL, notes that the most runs tallied by a team last year was 22 and that this run-production high was made by four teams—not one being Lake Harmony.

Getz's statistics show on April 22 West End defeated Barrett, 22-4; June 23, Reeder's topped Analomink, 22-6; July 7, Barrett downed Saylorsburg, 22-6, and on July 14, Bushkill tripped Analomink, 22-3.

East Stroudsburg Teachers track team had its troubles in its meet with New York Community College at Brooklyn last Saturday.

Besides the rain and cold, the Warriors ran into mismanagement of the track itself. While the mile run was in progress, someone forgot to take the hurdles off the track. You know what a jam up it must have been when four milers attempted to get around hurdles strewn across the track.

Another incident which didn't meet with favor was the towing of the pole vault which at times narrowly missed runners in other events.

It wasn't the ideal setup for a track meet—weather-wise, that is—and with the added obstacles the Warriors were lucky to come out with their lives instead of a victory.

Thirty-six local bowlers will participate in a tournament at Pappy's Central Lanes, Bethlehem, Friday night. The contingent led by the venerable Delaware Valley League kegler, Jake Nittel, have high hopes of bringing back the bacon to Monroe County as some of the area's best vie for the top awards.

CHICAGO (AP)—A three-run homer by veteran Bobby Thomson and a four-hit pitching job by rookie Glenn Hobbie provided the front running Chicago Cubs with a 4-0 decision over the Cincinnati Redlegs Tuesday.

Hobbie, a 22-year-old right-hander who had 15-15 for Memphis last season, struck out 7 and walked 4 in short-circuiting the Redleg power. It was the first time Cincinnati has been held to less than two runs this season.

Thomson slammed his No. 2 homer against a brisk wind into the left field stands in the opening inning. It was Chicago's 30th homer.

Dent Home 1st
Ernie Banks, who doubled, and Walt Morin, who reached first on a fielder's choice, scored ahead of Thomson.

Starter Joe Nuxhall was lifted for a pinch hitter in the second and Hersch Freeman, his replacement, locked up in a pitching duel with Hobbie until the seventh. In that inning, El Tappe singled off Freeman's left shin and the pitcher was removed for treatment.

Willard Schmidt and Bill Wright finished. Freeman held the Cubs to two singles and struck out five.

Local Employment Office Founded In 1938

One of the highlights of the never-dull history of the local Employment Service Office is the major role it played in the flood catastrophe which struck this area in August 1955. When the disaster struck, the local and district office then located at 22 S. Sixth St., in Stroudsburg quickly mobilized to assist in the tremendous task of rehabilitation and recovery.

The office remained open on an around-the-clock basis and the personnel, utilizing experience gained through years of public services, remained on the job recruiting relief and rescue workers. Over 1,500 volunteer workers were thus recruited in a few days to assist in the clean-up task confronting the area.

The office remained open 24 hours a day, Saturday and Sunday until the task was completed. The Secretary of Labor and Industry of the Commonwealth had this to say about the accomplishment of the Employment Service personnel during Stroudsburg's disaster.

"It is a source of deepest gratification to all of us who are associated with you to realize that in a period of intense stress such as that resulting from the recent terrible flood damage, you and the many members of your staff carried on in the very finest tradition of public service."

It is noteworthy to relate as well the increasingly important role the local office of the Bureau of Employment Security is playing in serving the personnel needs of employers in the Pocono Area. The total placement activity of the local office during 1957 was double that of 1954 and six times greater than back in 1938.

More applications for work were received during 1957 than in any previous year; 2,718 in number. Each year during the summer vacation season when the summer hotels, camps and allied service establishments require thousands of additional workers the local Employment Office plays a major role in filling those needs.

More and more these employers are relying upon the placement machinery of the public Employment Service to find for them the thousands of workers they require in a hundred diversified occupations and trades. About 2,000 workers were thus placed by the local office during the 1957 vacation season in cooperation with other public employment offices in nearby areas.

In order to provide additional placement service to resort employers during the peak hiring period added facilities are being arranged. A branch office to register and refer applicants for resort jobs will be opened at Mount Pocono in the Casino Building effective May 15.

Dougherty explains that by setting up this additional summer office in the heart of the resort area he expects to facilitate the filling of job orders from resorts and camps and speed the placement of the worker on the job. "Results of this experimental effort to improve the placement service of the local office will determine its continuation," Dougherty said.

The Bureau of Employment Security, in addition to the various Employment Service functions, is also concerned with the payment of employer's contributions to the Unemployment Compensation Fund. The Field Accounting Service, designated to assist employers in the proper determination and

Gouldsboro Park To Open This Month

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG—Data on public use of the state's new park off the Stroudsburg-Scranton Highway may be an important factor in further development of recreational sections in that area.

This was made known to the Daily Record yesterday by the disclosure by Joseph A. Blatt, chief of the Division of State Parks, Department of Forests and Waters, that it is planned to open the park to the public on Memorial Day.

Known as Gouldsboro Lake the new park is located in Monroe and Wayne counties about 30 miles northwest of Stroudsburg.

Interest in its use, in addition to that of the Department of Forests and Waters, is holding high rank with the National Park Service, the Record learned yesterday.

That agency is making an intensive study of the recreation development possibilities in the Delaware Basin and believes that valuable information will be provided from the operational and use data of the new park.

Blatt stated that the State Department of Highways is planning to make a traffic count on the road leading from Route 612 to the park which has been built by the Department of Forests and Waters.

Accurate Count

Since that road leads only to the park, Blatt said that "this is the only instance in which an accurate count of the number of persons going to a state park is possible. The other parks are reached by regularly traveled roads which necessitate estimates of use but our plan gives reasonably accurate results."

Gouldsboro Lake, which covers 68 acres in Wayne County and 255 acres in Monroe County, was formerly owned by the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad and was used as a source for ice for railroad cars.

The lake and shoreline was acquired from the railroad by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission less than two years ago. Development of the lake and the surrounding area was taken over by the Department of Forests and Waters some time later under arrangements with the fish commission.

Blatt commented on that arrangement saying "It is the first example of its kind in which state agencies have entered into a cooperative project and has already proved excellent results in the public welfare are obtained in such arrangements."

The entire surrounding area is forest land owned by the department which expects to extend the recreation development in the future.

The present development consists of a beach area, picnic section, food, refreshment and boating concessions and the necessary sanitary facilities. There is also a large parking area.

The road leading to the lake from Route 611 is more than two and one-half miles in length.

Cost of development of the park was $150,000. The funds taken from natural gas royalties which the legislature authorized to be used for development of state parks.

Plans Complete For Open House Program At New State Employment Service Office

FINAL plans have been completed for the Open House exercises to be conducted in the new Pennsylvania State Employment Service Office, 408 Main St., Stroudsburg, tomorrow.

This announcement was made yesterday by Dr. Frank P. Maguire, District Manager, after he and his staff completed a review of the scheduled activities.

The new quarters which were planned and designed by Carl J. Denz, assistant manager and John P. Dougherty, local manager, house both the local Pennsylvania State Employment Service office and the District Bureau of Employment Security office.

The Local Office consists of a large work area in which employment and unemployment compensation activities are handled, a conference room, private offices for the manager and the field accountant, and, an employees' room.

The District quarters include a private office for the District Manager and an office for the staff.

Commenting on the new offices, Dr. Maguire said, "In providing this modern office for the public employment service in the Stroudsburg area and for its use by the citizens of this area the Bureau demonstrates its faith in the production economy of the area. Its facilities are available to employers and workers alike—for employers in the utilization of the placement and industrial services facilities—for workers in their quest for gainful employment or the filing of claims for unemployment compensation."

"It is our sincere hope," said Dr. Maguire, "the placement facilities and other services of the new office will be fully utilized by the employers of the Monroe-Pike area thus justifying the establishment of this large and modern office."

The public, said Dougherty, is cordially invited to attend the Open House activities which will be held at 4 p. m.

He also indicated the office will remain open until 8 p. m. providing an opportunity to those who wish to inspect the new facilities.

Bureau employees will be available from 4 to 8 p. m. to conduct visitors on a tour of the building and to explain the services rendered by the local staff.

Rev. Esseff To Speak On Lourdes

REV JOHN H. ESSEFF will describe his post-Easter journey to Lourdes tonight at a meeting of Holy Name Society.

The meeting, at 8 p. m., will be held in the auditorium of St. Matthew's Parochial School in East Stroudsburg.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting. New members of the parish are especially welcome, according to William Dilgins, program chairman for the night.

Father Esseff and Rev. Robert Galligan, Pocono Mission, made a plane trip beginning Easter Sunday to Rome, Brussels and Lourdes.

At tonight's meeting, Father Esseff will detail the highlights of their journey.

Commission Hopeful Of Savings

HARRISBURG — A 60 per cent savings annually is anticipated in the cost of processing payrolls of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission as a result of a new machine accounting system inaugurated recently.

According to John M. Peregrin, Comptroller for the toll road agency, electronic calculating and electric accounting machines were used for the first time in preparing the paychecks for more than 1,400 Turnpike employees.

This change was in accordance with recommendations made by the internationally known accounting firm of Price Waterhouse and Company, with whom the present Commission contracted for an analysis and study of its policies and procedures.

The machines have been used for many years for fare revenue audits of officer collectors accounts from the field and the computation of toll revenues and other statistical data.

Commission payrolls were previously handled manually by clerical staff operation of computing and accounting machines. The recent integration of Federal Social Security benefits and State Employee's retirement placed a tremendous burden on the former method of payroll preparation, Peregrin explained.

The new system not only easily copes with the integrated social benefits but substantially reduces the payroll preparation costs, Peregrin said.
